

Social Media Policy

1. POLICY STATEMENT/PURPOSE

- a. Social media are robust communications and marketing tools that may significantly impact organizational and professional reputations. However, because there is no clear distinction between personal voice and institutional voice, Sonoran University of Health Sciences has developed the following guidelines to help clarify how best to enhance and protect personal and professional reputations and promote a harassment-free environment while participating on social media platforms.
- b. To allow for the laws, professional expectations, and guidelines for interacting with both internal and external parties, it is important to apply them online as you would in person. Due to the added scrutiny of publicity and time, the potential for uninformed or contextless interpretations can create dangerous precedent that is contrary to our core values. While Sonoran University respects an individual's rights to interact knowledgeably and socially, interactions with social media can create significant negative impact to even unintended parties. Thus, the entire Sonoran University community is responsible for maintaining the institutions' integrity no matter where, when, or how they interact with social media.
- c. While acting in a professional capacity, staff and faculty already follow the laws, expectations, and guidelines for interacting with students, alumni, and the public. This same behavior would be required to be held to an even stricter standard, as the additional scrutiny of publicity, time, and uninformed or contextless interpretations are a reality of making statements in digital spaces. This stricter adherence to existing policy and guidelines applies to all existing and future social network channels.
- d. Sonoran University respects an individual's right to interact knowledgeably and socially; however, interaction with social media can significantly impact the individual, staff, faculty, students, and the public. The purpose of this policy is to ensure that the entire Sonoran University community is responsible for maintaining the institutions' integrity no matter where, when, or how they interact with social media.
- e. Sonoran University staff, faculty, and students are responsible for the content they publish on their accounts on third-party websites and application services.
